Director of Production
Marc Fisher Footwear

Known for her signature style and inimitable creative lens, Danielle Jackson is a social entrepreneur and wardrobe stylist focused on empowering women entering the workplace through fashion and teaching them how to harness their marketability.

Danielle began her rise in the retail fashion industry as the Office Manager for the ready-to-wear fashion line, House of Deréon, owned by Tina Knowles and Beyoncé Knowles-Carter. She was quickly promoted to Executive Assistant to Tina Knowles, with whom she travelled globally on the “I AM” tour in several European and North American cities. She spent 3 years at “the bible of fashion” Women’s Wear Daily in integrated marketing and shifting gears to brand marketing for sportswear line Rachel Roy to work on large-sale marketing initiatives such as multi-city in store retail presentations.

Today, Danielle is a notable fashion executive, serving as the Director of Production at Marc Fisher Footwear, the leading manufacturer of namesake brand Marc Fisher, and today’s most coveted footwear lines including, Nine West, Sigerson Morrison, Easy Spirit, Tommy Hilfiger and GUESS. Danielle earned a B.A. in English Language and minor in Political Science at Northeastern University in Boston, Massachusetts. She is a three-time half marathon runner and 2017 NYC Triathlon finisher.

Continuously seeking to weave community involvement in her day-to-day activities, Danielle has served as a mentor for iMentor and Brotherhood-Sistersol since 2012 and is recent member of Two Ten's "WIFI" Women in Footwear Industry where she also mentors young women in the footwear industry.

Danielle resides in New York City with her husband.
