Director of Client Success
INTURN

Rebecca Goldberg currently holds the role of Director of Client Success at INTURN, a global B2B platform innovating the way brands and retailers buy and sell off-price inventory. In her role, Rebecca focuses on fostering relationships with global retailers to ensure sellers and buyers are able to work seamlessly leveraging INTURN's innovative platform.

Prior to joining INTURN Rebecca spent over a decade within large vertical retailers. She started her corporate career at Coach within their merchandising department where she grew as a merchant and a leader taking on several different roles including licensing, handbags and apparel. After seven years at Coach, Rebecca joined Victoria's Secret Direct as the Merchandising Manager for swimwear before moving over to PINK Intimates to support the rapid growth of that area of the business.

Following Victoria's Secret Rebecca consulted for The Frye Company, the American footwear company, before pursuing her entrepreneurial passion to work for a restaurant start-up. At Mulberry & Vine, a fast casual eatery with locations in New York City, she was responsible for hiring, training, marketing and partnership development. Rebecca eventually moved back into retail joining The Gap Inc. in 2017 where she leveraged her merchandising and licensing experience for several years before subsequently making the decision to join INTURN in 2019.

Rebecca is simultaneously pursuing her MBA at NYU Stern Langone's School of Business focusing on marketing, retail strategy and entrepreneurship. In her free time she is an active alumni with her alma mater, The University of Richmond, helping to mentor rising juniors and seniors interested in careers in retail.
