

Emily Olah*Managing Director of Olah, Inc

Emily Olah worked for more than six years in denim fabric and product development capacities for apparel brands in Los Angeles and New York prior to becoming the Managing Director of Olah, Inc in 2007. As the third generation of Olahs to enter into the family denim business, Emily directs and oversees all production aspects of the Kingpins denim trade shows, as well as the events department. Emily is also active in the textile, apparel, product development and sales divisions of the company.

Emily has a strong desire to give back through her work in the denim industry. Emily believes the future of denim lies in sustainability and traceability, which she feels will be the new premium standard for apparel.
